Conference Themes

1. Indigenous Modernities

This theme invites presentations that address the impact of modernity on communities of indigenous music/dance cultures in any country or region of the world. How are contemporary genres of popular culture, theatre or film being used by indigenous artists to express issues that concern them or challenges they currently face? What aspects of traditional song and dance knowledge are being either sustained or lost in the late 20th and early 21st century? What factors are contributing to their cultural maintenance, change, or decline? How is the production of media by indigenous musicians controlled, enabled, and invested with meaning? How are new contexts, new collaborations, and new audiences reshaping traditional and contemporary musical practices?

Scholars who submit abstracts for this theme will be aware that the term “indigenous” is often a subject of debate and redefinition. Similarly, “modernity” is a large concept that could include such things as industrial development, media or technological change, globalization, and intercultural exchange as well as deterritorialization and encroachments on indigenous land or lifeways.

2. Cross-cultural Approaches to the Study of the Voice

ICTM plans to share one day with the Phenomenon of Singing Symposium, an international event also taking place in St. John's in July 2011. Because our two conferences will bring together ethnomusicologists, singers, pedagogues and choral directors, some questions are motivated by our potential common interests. How is "the voice" conceptualized—sonically, socially, physically, metaphysically—in local traditions? For over a decade, the world music movement in Western education has advocated the use of non-Western vocal techniques and timbres: Which techniques/timbres have been successfully adopted/adapted and why? How have the uniform expectations and standards of international choral competitions and festivals affected local concepts about singing? How is "vocal health" defined by different cultural groups? Similarly, what are some culturally-specific discourses of vocal pathology and how are they implicated in vocal pedagogy? How are aspects of identity (gender, class, or ethnicity for instance) mapped on to voice types and timbres?

3. Rethinking Ethnomusicology through the Gaze of Movement

For this theme, we borrow the concept of the "gaze" from anthropology and visual art scholarship where the word implies not simply the act of looking, but also assumptions about who looks and from what perspective. To rethink how we might shift ethnomusicology through the gaze of movement then, might imply several different things. It could mean that we start from the perspective of those who "move." How do they perceive the time and space of music? Or it could mean that we consider the musical implications of looking at movement. By starting from the vocabularies, rhythms, and sensations of movement, how might we think differently about music? By considering how movement is naturalized, exoticized, formalized or contextualized, how is our attention to music already framed by these aspects of the visual and tactile? We encourage a broad definition of movement, one that might focus on formal dance, on gesture, or on the physicality of musical performance, to name only a few possibilities.

4. Atlantic Roots/Routes

For centuries, the Atlantic Ocean served as a major route that linked Europe, Africa, the Americas and the Caribbean. The intense movement of peoples and cultural practices within the framework of asymmetrical power relations, constitutes a legacy that has contributed to shaping the past and present of areas linked by the Atlantic. We invite proposals that address the ways through which political processes and cultural flows have shaped music and dance in the cultural spaces connected through Atlantic routes in the past and present. Taking into account the processes of globalization, how do historical and current circuits of exchange contribute to the reformulation and resignification of expressive practices and to the configuration of new cultural spaces? What are the distinctions between the political and cultural processes involving the northern and southern Atlantic? How can a critical perspective on the Atlantic contribute with new theoretical insights in ethnomusicology and a new understanding of the Atlantic as a crossroads?

5. Dialogical Knowledge Production and Representation: Implications and Ethics

In ethnomusicology, as in the other social sciences, dialogic research (that acknowledges how different perspectives shape knowledge and that facilitates conversations among doers and knowers) has become increasingly common, gradually changing the way knowledge is produced and represented, and stimulating the involvement of ethnomusicologists as cultural activists. The theoretical, methodological and ethical implications of the dialogical approach have, however, not been sufficiently debated in ethnomusicology. We invite papers that discuss the issues arising from dialogical research for knowledge production and representation, as well as the involvement of ethnomusicologists with the communities they study. What are the implications of the dialogic approach for the ethnomusicological endeavor? How do ethnomusicologists negotiate knowledge production with their interlocutors? How can the perspectives gained through dialogic research best be represented through ethnomusicological discourse and applied to the benefit of the communities studied?

6. Acoustic Ecology

This theme invites discussion of the ways that both human and non-human beings engage the world sonically, in relation to their environment. How do composers and performers model or integrate non-human sonic practices into their own music-making? How do sonic features particular to a place or to environmental conditions (e.g., geological, botanical, architectural) help to shape a local sound aesthetic? Likewise, what impact do musical/sonic practices have on natural or humanly-shaped environments? Given our urgent concern with issues of sustainability, how are messages of environmental degradation and efforts to reverse its effects registered in contemporary music-making? How do species like birds, whales or dogs use "song" and what might they teach us about human communication?

7. New Research

Proposals on new research on other relevant topics are also welcome.

LOCAL ARRANGEMENTS

You are invited to attend the 41st World Conference of the ICTM which will be held from 13-19 July 2011 in St. John's, Newfoundland and hosted by Memorial University. This year the Canadian Society for Traditional Music (CSTM) will be meeting conjointly with ICTM, 17-19 July 2011.

Atlantic Canada's largest university, Memorial University of Newfoundland is home to the Research Centre for Music, Media and Place (MMaP), the Qualitative Research Centre, and the Memorial University of Newfoundland Folklore and Language Archive (MUNFLA), the largest oral history and folklore archive in Canada.

To register for the conference and to reserve accommodations and meals, please go to the conference website: <http://www.mun.ca/ictm2011>

(Newfoundland and Labrador). Our historic city, with a current population of roughly 250,000 people, sparkles with music, dance and theatre. Located on a centuries-old shipping route, this port city developed at the hub of trans-Atlantic trade, becoming home to a variety of vibrant cultural traditions. Today, from the pubs of the George Street district to the concert halls and outdoor stages, visitors can hear everything from traditional Irish sessions and Newfoundland songs/tunes to original indie pop and the latest dance mixes.

Most conference sessions will take place in the School of Music or the adjacent Arts and Administration building. Memorial is home to the Research Centre for Music, Media and Place, the Qualitative Research Centre, and the Memorial University Folklore and Language Archive (the largest oral history and folklore archive in Canada). A reception will be held at our new provincial museum, an architecturally distinctive structure overlooking the stunningly beautiful narrows, our Atlantic doorway.

St. John's is home to numerous festivals, including the acclaimed international Festival 500 (choral festival and singing symposium) which will take place on days leading up to the ICTM conference. Some of the panels relating to our theme of "Cross-cultural Approaches to the Study of the Voice" will be scheduled concurrently with the singing symposium.

In the vicinity of St. John's you will be able to hike around our "ponds," along our rugged coastline, or down Signal Hill, so named because it was the site of the first trans-Atlantic radio signal. You can visit the easternmost point of North America at near-by Cape Spear, go sea-kayaking, or take an ocean tour to visit the whales on their northern migration. Be astounded by the 35 million seabirds—gannets, kittiwakes, puffins, razorbills—that burrow in the cliffs above the Atlantic. Hear English like you've never heard it spoken before (and buy your own Dictionary of Newfoundland English). Go further afield while in the province to explore one of the UNESCO World Heritage Sites in Gros Morne Park or the 1000-year old Viking settlement on our Great Northern Peninsula.

A rich array of performances are in the planning. You will enjoy local traditions, diverse Native American music and dance, and distinguished performers from across Canada and throughout the Americas. Our safe and amiable city is family friendly. So don't leave your loved ones behind.

EXCURSIONS: Saturday, July 16

#1: Cape St. Mary's and "The Old French Shore" (0830 to 1730)

Today we will drive the Irish Loop to the Cape St. Mary's Ecological Reserve, the most accessible and spectacular seabird colony in North America. This area is known for the thousands of Northern Gannets, who have a wing-span of over six feet, which nest in a few thousand feet of space. Also making their home in this area are Razorbills, Murres and other seabirds. We will visit the Interpretation Centre and hike along the top of sheer cliffs to a huge sea stack called Bird Rock. After lunch in St. Bride's we will travel to Placentia to the Castle Hill National Historic Site. Here we will view exhibits of French and English military history and life of the area in the 17th century.

PRICE PER PERSON: $125.00 (includes tax)
includes transportation, guide, lunch, and entrance fees
Minimum 6 participants; maximum 100

#2: Whale Watching & Bird Islands Tour (0830 to 1230)

This excursion begins with a drive down the Southern Shore to the historic Irish outport, Bay Bulls. Here we take a boat ride out to the Witless Bay Ecological Reserve Bird Islands, home to thousands of Atlantic Puffins, Murres and Kittiwakes in the spring and summer. July is peak whale season in Newfoundland and Labrador, and this morning we should get a good look at these giants, who come to our shores to feed on capelin.

PRICE PER PERSON: $90.00 (includes tax)
includes transportation to and from Bay Bulls with guide
No minimum or maximum

#3: Colony of Avalon (0900 to 1600)

We will travel to the Southern Shore of the Avalon Peninsula along the winding coastline of the beautiful Irish Loop, which is dotted with the small 'outport' communities for which Newfoundland is so famous. Following a picnic lunch at the Ferryland lighthouse, we will visit the Colony of Avalon Archaeology Site, where the remains of an early-17th century settlement is well preserved. We will walk on a 17th-century street, see a 17th-century herb garden, and look at the remains of everyday life in one of the earliest European colonies in North America. The colony was founded by George Calvert, later Lord Baltimore, in 1621. Most people have no idea that permanent European settlement in North America dates so far back, and that Newfoundland played such an important role. The Ferryland settlement was "forgotten," and its remains lay undisturbed for centuries.

PRICE PER PERSON: $125.00 (includes tax)

includes transportation, McCarthy's Party guide, entrance fees and picnic lunch
Minimum 6 participants; maximum 50

#4: Outports, Lucky Rocks, and John Guy's Colony (0930 to 1630)

Today we will go "around the Bay" along the picturesque coastline of Conception Bay, the home of pirates of centuries ago. We will stop in Holyrood to search for 'Lucky Rocks' on the beach. We also stop for picture taking as we make our way to Brigus, one of the historic sailing ports of Conception Bay and home of the late, famous Captain Bob Bartlett who took Perry to the North Pole. Here we have the opportunity to visit Hawthorne Cottage and take 'the walk' around the community. Lunch and local entertainment today is in Cupids, one of the oldest settled communities in Newfoundland. 2010 marks the 400th anniversary of John Guy establishing a colony in this area for the Merchant Ventures' in Bristol, England. Lunch is catered by Viola Wells of Skipper Ben's Bed and Breakfast and the local community. After lunch we will visit the museum in Cupids and the archaeology site where the old colony is being rediscovered. Our guide will regale you with the history, culture and language of the Newfoundland people.

PRICE PER PERSON: $125.00 (includes tax)

includes transportation by motor coach, McCarthy's Party guide, all entrance fees, and lunch.

Minimum 6 participants; maximum 100

#5: The Far East of the Western World (1400 to 1700)

Tour old St. John's this afternoon, with plenty of time to see such national historic sights as Cabot Tower, Signal Hill, the Anglican Cathedral of St. John the Baptist and the Basilica. Hear the legends of Dead Man's Pond and Government House, and the history surrounding the Colonial Building. This tour will orient you and give you a feel for the history, legend and lore of St. John's, the oldest community in North America. Next we are off to visit the National Park at Cape Spear, the most easterly point of land in all of North America. Here the lighthouse has been restored to circa 1836. Explore the bunkers built by Canadian soldiers in the side of the cliffs here during the Second World War. Now you can say you have been to the other "Far East" where you can stand with your back to the Atlantic and face every other being in North America. Or you can turn your back on them; the choice is yours.

PRICE PER PERSON: $50.00 (includes tax) includes transportation, guide, and entrance fees

Formation of an ICTM Regional Committee for Australia and New Zealand

At the 2009 World Conference in Durban, the ICTM executive approved the creation of a new Regional Committee for Australia and New Zealand. After a lengthy process of electing committee members, the formation of the Regional committee was publicly announced to the academic community in New Zealand and Australia on consecutive weekends in November-December 2009 in the following forums:

- On Saturday 28 November, the launch of the RC was included as an agenda item in the IASPM-ANZ AGM at the 2009 IASPM-ANZ Conference in Auckland. A discussion session was held as part of the conference program on the following day.
- On Friday 4 December, the launch of the RC was included as a program item in the schedule of the Ethnomusicological Futures meeting convened by Prof Huib Schippers at the Queensland Conservatorium. A discussion session concerning the initial role and purpose of the RC was held on the following morning.

Both of these forums provided opportunities for discussion concerning the challenges for ethnomusicology in contemporary Australasia. These discussions have served to provide the new Regional Committee with a set of objectives, including:

- Generating information about what 'ethnomusicologists' do, so as to influence how the field of 'ethnomusicology' is perceived by others
- Organising workshops aimed at building knowledge of theory in particular areas
- Liaising with other scholarly organisations and committees in order to build the potential for sharing knowledge and research initiatives
- Establishing connections with community music groups and migrant community groups to create a broad-based network of scholars and practitioners.
- Advocating for researchers, particularly by providing guiding statements about ethnomusicological theory and method
- Advocating for ethnomusicology, folk music studies or other areas in the public domain

In recognition of the diversity of music research in Australasia, the Regional Committee executive includes a member from each of the three other regional organisations for music research (the Musicological Society of Australia, the New Zealand Musicological Society, and the Australia-New Zealand chapter of the International Association for the Study of Popular music). The committee members for the two-year period 2010-2011 are:

Chair: Dan Bendrups (Otago)
Secretary: Kirsty Gillespie (Griffith)
MSA rep: Jonathan McIntosh (UWA)
NZMS rep: Brian Diettrich (NZSM)
IASPM-ANZ rep: Katelyn Barney (UQ)

Any questions concerning the Regional Committee can be directed to committee chair, Dan Bendrups, at dan.bendrups@otago.ac.nz

Call for Papers

Meeting of the ICTM Study Group For Music Archaeology: Sound and Ritual in Music Archaeology: Bridging Material and Living Cultures

XII. Congress of the ICTM Study Group for Music Archaeology
University of Valladolid, Spain
September 19-24, 2011

Ritual aspects of sound production are frequently touched in music-archaeological studies, but seldom the main focus of research. Ritual behaviour is often reflected in material culture, but the individual meaning of ritual acts is often difficult to deduce when it comes to societies of the past. Even more difficult is the study of the interaction of ritual activities and sound production in ancient societies. In some cases, living traditions may offer hints, but ethnographical and ethnomusicological information also reveal the wide frame of possible interpretations. However, archaeological contexts, the instrument symbolism, iconographical and/or textual information, and other data offer at least some information. Also, the characteristic sounds and their respective effects can be analyzed and, when including all relevant information in a comparative way, a great portion of possible ritual settings reconstructed. This congress turns to ritual and religious behaviours related to musical practices of the past, including the performative dimension of rituals closely linked with musical practices, but also to the ritual-like nature of performing activities involving musical behaviours. Comparable and distinctive elements between societies from different cultural areas and times, including living traditions will be discussed. It is aimed to establish a methodology of studying the interrelation of ritual behaviours and sound production in past societies.

Four conference days, two concert evenings, and an excursion to visit large private collections of musical instruments and gramophones in the nearby village Urueña are planned. We ask if you could submit your abstract no later than October 31, 2010.

The Abstracts of 200–300 words should include the title of your presentation, and your contact details and current affiliation. The conference languages are English and Spanish. Selected papers presented at the conference will be published.

ICTM Ireland Annual Conference

25-27th February 2011

Magee College, University of Ulster, Derry/Londonderry

'LISTENING'

Keynote Speaker: Prof Thomas Turino

As has been made clear by Small (1998), Keil and Feld (1994), Turino (2008) amongst many others, there is no such thing as a 'passive' consumption of music. Each musical experience involves stimulation, recognition, interpretation, evaluation, and often provokes a socially meaningful response. These processes are influenced by both the listener's own 'musical background' and shared cultural meanings.

The central focus of this conference will be the nexus of musical audition on the one hand and the listener's responses on the other. Themes we will attempt to investigate may include;

- Listening and memory
- Learning to listen
- The role of media in dislocating music from a fixed social context
- Cross-cultural listening
- Differences between musicians' and non-musicians' modes of listening
- The cultural politics of public audition
- Age, gender and interpretation

Conference convenors welcome submissions of 200 word abstracts from all relevant academic fields.

This year we particularly welcome short (10 minute max) video extract submissions, which will be shown between panel sessions.

For the first time, we also invite field audio recording extracts (max 5-minutes) accompanied by a slide presentation, from research in progress, which will be presented in a slide installation.

Further details regarding submissions and registration are available at www.ictm.ie

The closing date for ALL submissions is December 1st 2010

Submissions and general queries should be sent to: tony.langlois@mic.ul.ie

Small, Christopher, (1998) Musicking, Wesleyan University Press.

Keil, Charles and Stephen Feld (1994) Music Grooves. University of Chicago Press.

Negotiating 'the West' Music(ologic)ally

Monday, 11th April 2011 - 8:00am - Tuesday, 12th April 2011 - 6:00pm

The Musicology Departments of Utrecht University, and Royal Holloway, University of London, will jointly host a conference at Utrecht University addressing 'the West' in music(ologic)al production and consumption.

The destabilisation of 'the West' as a self-perceived entity has marked the last decade at nearly every front – economically, politically, and culturally. Meanwhile, questions about 'the West' as a category for construction and political deployment have significantly broadened research agendas in the humanities, unravelling the ways in which various artistic, literary, scholarly and popular media have been complicit in the cultural politics that have shaped, and continue to shape, the global infrastructure we experience today.

In music scholarship, too, the conceptual and geographical centre of 'Western music' has become unsettled, as has its prerogative over moral and aesthetic value. If 'Western music' ever did refer to a self-explanatory category of aural experience, it is no longer an unchallenged phenomenon against which 'others' can be perceived separately. Yet 'the West' still figures in many day-to-day representations of music. It also inheres structurally in today's fields of music research, as institutes, disciplinary societies and journals generally continue to reflect major divides in terms of methodology (anthropological/historical), repertoire (art/folk/popular), and music practice (written/oral).

This conference seeks to address this situation by probing beyond it methodologically. Postcolonial analysis in the classic sense – i.e., exposing imperialist agendas in the West's representations of its 'others' – has been criticised for being limited by the way it perpetuates the West/non-West dualism, and for being more concerned with reproving 'the West' than with other strategies. If this critique is appropriate, what would be an alternative way of analysing the power politics that inform musico-cultural production?

Questions that might inspire, but by no means are intended to limit, the discussion are:

- In which ways did/do music(ologic)al discourses and practices reflect, if not shape, the formation of the idea of 'the West' as a political and/or cultural integrity? What, by whom, under which circumstances, and to which purposes, was/is claimed to be 'Western music(ology)'?
- How have the ideologies and practices pertaining to 'Western music(ology)' been transmitted across the globe? How did they interact with existing music(ologic)al practices? Which aspects were rejected, adopted, transferred, translated and institutionalised? What was viewed from a non-Western perspective as associated with 'the West'?
- How have conceptions of 'Western music' changed as contexts have shifted between, for instance, competing nation-states, the Cold War polarity, and current challenges to the neoliberal economic paradigm from the rapidly evolving economies of China, India, and the United Arab Emirates?

- How is 'the West' located, mediated, and negotiated in record studios, film music, commercial tunes, radio broadcasting, at festivals, or on concert stages? How does it feature, for instance, in 'world music', a site of musical production and consumption putatively distinct from the 'Western' mainstream?
- How does 'the West' relate to present-day conflicts between cultural preservation and modernisation, as played out on and between, local, regional, national and global levels?
- How does 'the West' appear in the music histories taught across the globe? Do these histories conflict or do they meet with a postcolonial consensus, if any such consensus exists?

Submission

Abstracts limited to 300 words should have been sent before 1 October 2010 to Harm Langenkamp, Utrecht University (h.j.m.langenkamp@uu.nl)

Procedure

Applicants will be informed of acceptance by 15 November 2010 at the latest. In order to maximise discussion we have chosen the seminar model: selected speakers will be asked to distribute their papers two weeks in advance of the conference, and then present 15-minute summaries at their session. After each presentation, there will be 15 minutes for discussion, and each day will be closed with a round table discussion which offers the opportunity to engage more deeply in the issues raised. The publication of (a selection of) the papers in a collected volume will be considered. For the most recent information, see the website here: <http://www.uu.nl/EN/faculties/Humanities/congres/negotiatingthewest/Pages/default.aspx>.

REPORTS

UNESCO NEWS

CD series to Smithsonian Folkways

On 23 April 2010 Smithsonian Folkways (Washington DC, USA) signed a contact with UNESCO about the CDs and earlier audiovisual materials that have been produced by UNESCO. As from now Smithsonian will be the institute dealing with the UNESCO CD series, both the already published CDs and the ones that have been entirely edited by the ICTM but not yet been published.

Smithsonian Folkways has begun to allocate resources for publishing the volumes that have been on the shelves for many years ready to be published, as a first priority for that series. That these projects were never produced was the main reason why UNESCO cancelled the distribution contract with Auvidis/ Naïve in May 2005.

UNESCO already sent the inventory and all the materials concerning these recordings to Smithsonian Folkways. Mary Monseur will be responsible for the 'pipeline projects' and the overall responsibility lies with Atesh Sonneborn. All ICTM members that have compiled such 'pipeline projects' have been informed about the new situation. You may find more information about Smithsonian Folkways and its staff at <http://www.folkways.si.edu/>.

We are very happy that at last the CD series will again become available to the interested public and researchers. Although the authors will have to be patient a little longer, because the materials sent by UNESCO have first to be sorted out by Smithsonian, we hope that the 16 'pipeline projects' will soon be published so that proper tribute is paid to the compilers and the performers on these recordings. I conclude by repeating what Tony Seeger and I wrote five years ago in the October 2005 Bulletin: 'We also deeply regret the delays in releasing some fine projects. We are certain that the value of the recordings that have been released will endure, and that they will serve as points of reference for future researchers and for artists.'

2003 Convention

The General Assembly of the 2003 Convention for the Safeguarding of the Intangible Cultural Heritage (ICH) met from 22 to 24 June in Paris. The GA confirmed the decision of the Intergovernmental Committee on the accreditation of 97 NGOs, including ICTM, for a period of 4 years. The GA also adopted new Operational Directives that are a real improvement when compared to the older version (see for Resolutions of the GA

<http://www.unesco.org/culture/ich/index.php?lg=en&pg=00283>: for only the new Operational Directives <http://www.unesco.org/culture/ich/index.php?lg=en&pg=00026>).

The new Operational Directives mention the establishment of a Consultative Body of the Committee in section I.7, especially paragraphs 26-28. This Consultative Body will consist of six independent experts and six accredited NGOs and advise the Committee on (1) the received nominations for inscription on the List of Intangible Cultural Heritage in Need of Urgent Safeguarding, (2) on the proposals of programmes, projects and activities that best reflect the principles and objectives of the Convention and on (3) the International Assistance requests greater than US$25,000. This means that the structural role of the NGOs in the convention has been increased, as compared to the earlier Operational Directives. The establishment of the Consultative Body to the Committee is an experiment that will be evaluated.

UNESCO is also trying to strengthen the capacity of NGOs in safeguarding ICH. The first capacity-building workshop was held in Tallinn, Estonia, from 2-4 September 2010 and the participants consisted mainly of representatives from eastern European countries. In the mean time UNESCO is preparing materials for following workshops. The UNESCO-ICH secretariat will also arrange a meeting of one day for the NGOs on 14 November 2010, just before the start of the Committee meeting in Nairobi from 15-19 November. This will be announced on the UNESCO-ICH website.

National Committee Report – Austria

The annual meeting of the ICTM National Committee Austria took place in Innsbruck, June 18 – 19, 2010. The symposium was dedicated to the situation of young academics in Austria. The participants raised the question of whether there was sufficient national and international sponsorship and individual promotion for young academics in ethnomusicology? How successful is the Mentoring Program for Women Academics and Scientists at the University of Vienna? The National Committee had invited four young academics to Innsbruck. In the first part they were provided the opportunity to present their current research activities, i. e. their respective PhD projects:

Hande SAĞLAM, „Zur Aşik-Tradition in Sivas/Mittelanatolien“

Pei Ju TSAI, „Chinesische Musikinstrumente in der modernen Musik“

Wei-Ya LIN, „Musik im Leben der Tao: Tradition und Innovation“

Bernd BRABEC DE MORI, „Die Lieder der richtigen Menschen. Musikalische Kulturanthropologie in Westamazonien“.

On the next day the small-sized symposium was continued by a colloquium, where we addressed the actual situation of young academics in Austria. In the course of the discussion it emerged that the senior scientists among us were rather concerned with the question whether our educational programs at the universities really met the requirements of the future. Questions as “Is field research still the core of ethnomusicology?” or “Do we need a better theoretical framework and more well-grounded intra-disciplinary discourse?” were raised. Whereas our younger colleagues were much more worried about how to earn their living and feared for unemployment.

The participants argued for this matter to be continued in the next meeting in 2011 which is supposed to (again) be a joint meeting in cooperation with Slovenia, Croatia, and Slovakia.

The meeting was framed by a concert “Echoes of diversity in Tyrol” organized by the University Mozarteum Salzburg, the Initiative Minorities and the Institute of Popular Culture and Culture Development, conception by Yeliz Dagdevir and Thomas Nußbaumer.

Among the manifold activities of the Institute of Folk Music Research and Ethnomusicology at the University of Music and Performing Arts Vienna the invitation of Marcello Sorce Keller for a guest lecture in June 2010, the finalization of a research project on “Bi-Musicality and the Intercultural Potential of the Students at the University” (Hande Saglam and Ursula Hemetek) in May 2010, and the presentation of the results of a field research project involving students on Migrant Music in Vorarlberg in June 2010 should also be mentioned. As two ICTM Study Group chairs work at the institute, there has been involvement in preparation of two Study Group symposia: the 6th Study Group Symposium Music and Minorities in Hanoi (20.-25.7 2010, Ursula Hemetek) as well as the 1st Study Group Symposium on Multipart Music in Sardinia (15.-20.9. 2010, Ardian Ahmedaja).

National Committee Report – Germany

The German National Committee held its General Assembly and Annual Meeting on February 12 – 13, 2010, by invitation of Prof. Dr. Gretel Schwörer-Kohl at the Institute for Musicology and Music of the Martin-Luther-University Halle/Wittenberg in Halle.

The topic of the Annual Meeting „Music-Transfer“ could be interpreted broadly and in a multilayered way, in order to give possibly to many of our members the opportunity to contribute to the conference with a paper out of their research field. The term „transfer“ - though being a non music-specific term – can be set in its meanings of „transmission“, „passing on“, „transformation“, „conversion“ in relation to music in a highly complex way. The papers discussed different questionings, like aspects of the transfer of music in relation to colonization and migration, processes of transfer and re-transfer, in a diachronic comparison as well, processes of acculturation, intercultural interactions.

In addition, reports on recent research projects were presented.

After a warm welcome by the President Dorit Klebe, the conference was opened by Prof. Dr. Gretel Schwörer-Kohl. Matthias Lewy started into the conference's topic with a post-colonial discourse on the process of re-transfer investigating the reception of the music recorded on wax cylinders by Koch-Grünberg (1911-1914 in North Brazil and South Venezuela) today by members of the ethnic group Pemón (Venezuela). The first session containing four papers on music out of regions in Middle and South America was continued by Sven Kirschlager who examined in his paper on „Corrido-s and the transfer of information during the Mexican revolution“ a possible explanation of the transfer of information in ballads (Corrido-s) representing - in form of a „folk newspaper“ - partly alternative perspectives to an official historiography. Jörgen Torp gave a paper on forms and styles of an elder and specific urban popular music in the transfer of atlantic seaports (between Europe and America, esp. South America) and had a critical look on the term “transfer” concerning its methods for Ethnology and Ethnomusicology. The paper of Helen Hahmann - though not referring to the conference's topic – was part of this section because of its geographical affiliation. Her elaborations on cultural reformism in Peru concentrated on music and dance competitions formally carried out by governmental and non-governmental institutions pointing out observations of interactions in relation to the fusioning of a „national“ and „regional“ repertoire. The following session faced two papers each other, combining elements became obvious as well. Barbara Alge looked upon the role of the internet in musical projects of interactions and discussed chances and limits of interactive practise and transfer of music raising questions of f.i. the change in concert habits, performance practise, emergence of new music genres. The performance practise of Greek psaltes focusing on various forms of the diatonic echos varys as found in the living tradition today were explored by Oliver Gerlach, and he made an attempt to trace back to the theoretical concept of this mode, completed by different forms of intonation in a live performance. Belonging to the conference's topic as well, Ekkehart Royl had examined the transfer of music from Portugal to Indonesia and from Spain to the Malayan island world concentrating on the process of acculturation of the Philipino Rondalya/Rondalla, a parallel phenomenon of the Indonesian Kroncong. Cultural processes of transfer and transcultural identity not only mirroring a religious but also a musical level were demonstrated by Marieluise Herrmann who contemplated the Javanese Gamelan orchestra in the context of different religions. A further paper related to the topic „Music-Transfer“ by Arnd Adje Both researching on intercultural transfers of music traditions by means of archeological examples had to be cancelled.

The presentation of reports on recent research had been opened by Angelika Jung on a project sponsored by the DFG [German Research Society] with the title: The Shashmaqam from Buchara in the last version of Ari Babakhanov, the last master of this tradition. This compilation being printed represents the last version of the Bucharian Shashmaqam in its most complete documentation. A report on a video collection of the German Dance Archive Cologne putting in the center the art of movement and music styles of the Pencak Silat in Western Java and Western Sumatra gave Uwe U. Pätzold and he demonstrated complex and interwoven phenomena of the Pencak Silat often being seen as a journey through life by those who practise it. A diachronic attempt to compare playing techniques of reed instruments in the ancient world and present time was planned to be given by Olga Sutkowska. It had to be replaced by a paper of Pooyan Azadeh (Iran) reporting of his research among the Sangsar nomads in Iran and setting a focus on the Persian cane flute ney. The Vice President Edda Brandes gave a distinct look in her research on the instrument imzad exploring the situation of the imzad music among the Tuareg in Mali in a diachronic comparison (2009 and 1994). Rewadee Ungpho from Bangkok gave a paper on The Ritual Music in the Thetsakhorn Kin Che-Ceremony of Southern Thailand pointing out multifold mutual influences and interactions of and between Buddhism, Chinese Buddhism and Taoism, and the development of a concept of integration by Thai and Chinese Thai peoples. Music of Albania stood in the centre of two speakers. Eckehard Pistrick had investigated lamentation songs and songs in the context of migration; Bledar Kondi (Tirana) had examined male dirges, representing a form of collective crying, in his paper titled The Rite of Gjama - the male scream for grief and self-sacrifice in the death ceremony of Albania.

A prospect for the place of the next Annual Meeting of the German National Committee in 2011 presented Wolfgang Bender, managing director of the Center for World Music (CWM), an autonomous institution cooperating with the Institute for Music and Musicology of the Hildesheim University. He reported on the opening ceremony of the CMW in June 2009, its objectives and its most comprehensive collections of music instruments.

The topic's main emphasis of the Annual Meeting of the German National Committee showed that the research on the transfer of culture in general and on music in special is of elementary signification for our discipline Ethnomusicology; distinct papers made an important contribution, though partly in its initial stages. The discussion revealed furthermore that up to now the required methods still seem to be in development. The publishing of the elaborated papers will take essential steps for a further development in future.

The General assembly was opened by the President Dorit Klebe. In her report she informed about the activities of the German National Committee, especially the representation at the 40th ICTM World Conference July, 2009 in Durban (South Africa). Chairs and/or participating members of ICTM Study Groups reported on meetings which had already taken place and which will take place. 2009: Folk Musical Instruments, April, Berlin/Germany; Music Archeology, September, New York/USA. 2010: Balkan Music, April, Izmir/Turkey; Historical Sources, April, Vilnius/Lithuania; Music of the Turkic-speaking World, May, Berlin/Germany; Music and Minorities, July, Hanoi/Vietnam; Music of East Asia, August, Seoul/Korea; 1st conference of the ICTM National Committee of Portugal/SIBE, October, Lisboa/Portugal.

A new Website was presented: <http://ictm-deutschland.de>

The assembly applauded and expressed their highest approval and gratitude to Prof. Dr. Marianne Bröcker and our member Florian Ball for their efforts.

The proceedings of the Annual Meetings [Berichte aus dem ICTM-Nationalkomitee Deutschland] 2008 and 2009, edited by Marianne Bröcker, are published and available under www.mv-buchhandel.de The ISBN number is: 978-3-86991-029-1. These two volumes XVIII and XIX contain the papers given 2008 and 2009; a CD with the musical examples illustrating the articles of the authors is attached and included in the book's price of 22,80 €. Please find the table of contents of the volumes on our website.

Remark: Please notice that – because of an error of data transfer - the article of Dorit Klebe (vol. XVIII, p. 89 – 112) is printed without footnotes. The complete manuscript can be ordered: dorit.klebe@fu-berlin.de

The Annual Meeting of the German National Committee owed its good atmosphere to the Institute for Musicology and Music of the Martin-Luther-University Halle/Wittenberg in Halle being the host for this conference. I would like to express again my gratitude to Prof. Dr. Gretel Schwörer-Kohl and her staff and last but not least to the students' helping hands, including a delicate care of our gourmets. I am also thankful to all participants who found their way to Halle in spite of really very snowy, chilly, unfavourable weather conditions, and especially to those who helped with their papers to make the conference a success.

The next Annual Meeting will take place in February 2011 at the Center for World Music (CWM) in Hildesheim.

2. Music Research Centres, Music Libraries and Music Archives

a. Musical Folklore Archives Melpo Merlie (see http://www.mla.gr/arch_index). The Musical Folklore Archives (M.F.A.) founded in 1930 by Melpo Merlie (1889-1979), is the oldest and the most historic center studying Greek traditional music, whether Byzantine, demotic or rebetika. From that time to the present day, the loving care of Melpo Merlier herself above all, as well as her distinguished associates (Nikos Skalkottas, Petros Petrides, Georges Poniridy, Nicholas Chrysochoides, Aglaia Ayioutanti, Despina Mazaraki, Samuel Baud-Bovy), has enriched the centre's precious collection with uniquely invaluable material. The head of M.F.A., Markos F. Dragoumis, aided by Thanassis Moraitis and also friends that offer voluntary work, is devoted to enriching the Musical Folklore Archives with ever fresh material. From 1975 to the present day, over 50 expeditions to several parts of the country have been carried out. Many songs and airs have been recorded, with the participation of local singers and musicians, unknown to the wide public. The purpose is clear: to study the musical, linguistic and ethnographic peculiarities of each specific locality and to do research on the correlation of influences absorbed from or exerted on other areas, both in the narrower sense of adjacent Greek regions and in the wider sense of neighbouring peoples.

Report on the 8th Meeting of the ICTM Study Group for the Anthropology of Music in Mediterranean Cultures

The eighth Meeting of the Study Group on the theme "Musical Translations Across the Mediterranean" took place in Malta (July 1-4, 2010) hosted on its premises by the Mediterranean Institute of the University of Malta. The Program Committee was made up of Marcello Sorce Keller (Study Group Chair), Philip Ciantar (University of Malta), Ruth F. Davis (Cambridge University), Simon Mercieca (University of Malta), Martin Stokes (Oxford University). We are all very grateful to Dr. Simon Mercieca, Director of the Mediterranean Institute, for the hospitality he offered and for all the good advice and organizational input he provided.

This 8th Meeting represented a new turn for the Study Group, in more ways than one. It took place in Malta for the first time (one can hardly get more Mediterranean than that...), and also its format was in part reconfigured. The Meeting was in fact part of a combined event entitled "Encounters with Mediterranean Music", in which the paper presentations were preceded by two intensive days of International Music Pedagogy Workshops for primary and secondary school music teachers. The workshops comprised "Introduction to Ethnomusicology and Mediterranean Soundscapes" taught by Philip Ciantar (University of Malta) and "Applied Ethnomusicology in the Classroom" taught by Elita Maule (Conservatorio di Musica di Bolzano, Italy). The music teachers were also invited to attend the Study Group Meeting, so that they could see ethnomusicologists "in action," and make contact with them. The rationale behind this combined event was that music teachers all over Europe are facing the challenge of teaching pupils from different cultural backgrounds, and may therefore benefit from interaction with ethnomusicologists, with their long and diverse experience in dealing with composite musico-cultural situations. Hopefully music teachers may have learned something useful from ethnomusicologists, and a few of us ethnomusicologists may have become more sensitive to how dramatically music educators need our expertise as a result of such "Encounters".

On the evening of June 30th, as a prelude to the Meeting, a concert and reception were held in the Parish Church of Bormla (not far from Valletta) where we were treated to a performance of music by Maltese composers on the historical Ottavino Organ of the Parish Church. This was followed by a lecture demonstration by Ruben Zara (University of Malta) who showed us how traditional Maltese instruments are used in world music groups.

The Meeting proper began on July 1, with Philip Bohlman (University of Chicago and Hannover), delivering the Keynote Address "Found in Translation: Epic, Song, and the Discovery of the Mediterranean." Martin Stoke (Oxford University) responded to Bohlman's Address with a commentary that turned out to be a veritable parallel lecture, albeit an improvised one.

There followed presentations by Britta Sweers (Universität Bern), "Early Music and Mediterranean World: Historical Translations of Musical Encounters"; Ranier Fsadni (University of Malta), "Maltese Ghana and Cultural Translation"; Francesco

Del Bravo (Freie Universität, Berlin), "Translation or Transfer? Hermeneutical Perspectives on the Relationships between Mediterranean and Bellinian Song"; Michael Saffle (Virginia Tech), "Translating and Rebuilding Musical Place: 'The Sopranos' and Italian-American Musical Culture"; Philip Ciantar (University of Malta), "The Process of Musical Translation: Composing a Maltese Festa Band March from Libyan Ma'luf Music"; Simon Mercieca (University of Malta), "Translated Repertoires in Malta from Secular to Religious: The case of Vincenzo Mifsud"; Edwin Seroussi (Hebrew University, Jerusalem), "Translating from Nothing and from Everything: a Retrospective of Israel's Band Habrera Hativeel"; Özlem Dogus Varli (Black Sea Technical University-State Conservatory, Trabzon-Turkey), "Music and Traditional Translation from Trabzon (Black Sea Region in Turkish Republic) To North Cyprus"; Nahoko Matsumoto (Tokai University, Japan), "What is 'Our' music/dance? Cultural translation style in the Association Activities of Circassian Turkish"; Marco Lutz (Conservatory of Music, Cagliari) "Sardinian Rap Between Mass Culture and Local Specificities"; Franco Fabbri (University of Turin), "Found in Translation: Rembetika"; Maria Hnaraki (Drexel University, US), "Bridging the Local with the Local: Ross Daly and the Cretan Lyra"; Sarah Ross (Universität Bern), "Translating American-Jewish Feminism through Mediterranean Music"; Caroline Bithell (University of Manchester), "Ripples in a Sea of Ex(CHANGE): Songs and Sentiments in Translation"; Paul Sant Cassia (University of Malta), "Is 'Ethnic Music' Like Ethnic Cuisine? Some Reflections on the Paradoxes of 'Essential' Essentializing"; Linda Barwick (University of Sydney), "'Oltre l'Australia c'è la luna': an Australian Researcher Encounters the Tuscan Maggio"; Gila Flam (The National Library of Israel), "Jewish Music from Jerusalem to Jerusalem: the Mediterranean Timeless Music". Regrettably, because of a minor accident, that luckily turned out to be without serious consequences, Ruth Davis (Cambridge University) could not make it to Malta and deliver her paper "Tunisian Jewish Song, 'El Ghriba', and the Musical Semantics of Otherness."

Finally, Goffredo Plastino (Newcastle University), delivered a paper, entitled "Different but Equal. On Mediterranean Musical Translation", that was not just an original paper, which it certainly was, but also a clever summary of the themes discussed by all the previous papers!

In conclusion the Marcello Sorce Keller (University of Malta) announced what the Study Group has the pipeline. The web Journal founded by Tullia Magrini for the Study Group, Music & Anthropology, will continue to exist with the new name of Mediterranean Music Studies but will no longer be a periodical publication. It will host contributions, multimedia complementary to the books published by the Study Group, and information about Mediterranean associations, centers and journals whose interests include music. Mediterranean Music Studies has been in preparation for a long time, for too long actually. The difficulty has been that of finding technical expertise at no cost - because the SG has no money whatsoever. Finally, in Malta the home page was presented and with a bit of luck MMS will be officially open by the end of the year. In this connection Artemis Vakianis (Fachhochschule Kufstein; Association for the Promotion of the Music of the Mediterranean) showed us a huge portal also in preparation, with support of the EU, devoted to Mediterranean music and musicians that, in some way to be examined, could become complementary and/or supportive of MMS.

A proposal to the Secretary General has been submitted for the next Study Group Colloquium on "Dueling songs in the Mediterranean" that we would like to take place in October 2011, in Portugal, hosted by Salwa el-Shawan Castelo Branco. Details will be released as soon as possible, pending approval.

The proceedings of the Cambridge Colloquium of 2008, "Al-Andalus and its Jewish Diasporas: Musical Exodus" edited by Ruth Davis, is expected to be published by Scarecrow Press in 2011.

The proceedings of this Maltese 8th Meeting also deserve to be published, because the quality of contributions presented was very high. More than one possibility seems to be available. Mediterranean Music Studies could naturally host contributions essentially based on multimedia. The Journal of Mediterranean Studies (University of Malta) could be another possible venue. Scarecrow Press may possibly be persuaded to publish a second volume, which would almost be tantamount to initiating a book series?

Our Maltese Meeting was enriched by the presence of Maltese scholars, of historical musicologist (as the tradition has it, as in the Mediterranean one cannot conceive of anthropology without history), and of several scholars who for the first time became part of our group. This is the recipe that we would like to apply for the future: an alternation of Meetings (possibly in Malta) and Colloquia (in other parts of the Mediterranean broadly defined); and time after time, the participation of new people and people representing the locale hosting us.

So, when and where are we going to have the 9th Meeting? Definitely the year will be 2012, and Malta is the likely place. The theme might be "Mediterranean Islands: Patterns of Isolation and Contact, but a final decision will be made before the end of the year".
